THE STAIRWAY TO 1990

In the past twenty years, our world has undergone drastic changes. A good number of these milestones occurred on the 1980s, especially the last four years of that decade. As children of this era, we have witnessed events that will affect both our lives and those of future generations.

Some of the most noteworthy happenings took place in our own neighborhoods and touched us in a very personal way. Conflicts about the pro's and con's of nuclear power plants as close as Seabrook, New Hampshire, and Plymouth, Massachusetts, were often debated. Controversies about the damaged ozone layer, the greenhouse effect, acid rain and other attacks on our environment were important to our daily lives. Fund raisers in which people helped one another, such as the "Walk for Hunger," stand out in our minds as positive episodes.

The American media was full of stories relating to the Iran Scam scandal, and "Oliver North" became a household name in 1987. The world stage was also active at this time, especially with stories of terrorism. That phenomenon caused many disasters worldwide: one of the worst of these included the loss of two-hundred fifty-seven lives on the ill-fated PanAm flight over Lockerbie, Scotland, a few days before Christmas, 1988. In the United States there was also a presidential election that same year which captured all our interests; the effects of the election of George Bush as forty-first president will undoubtedly be far-reaching. One of the worst disasters in recent history arose when the Exxon oil tanker "Valdez" ran aground at Prince William Sound, Alaska in Spring, 1989 spilling thousands of gallons of its black cargo into the ocean, virtually destroying the environment and the wildlife of the area. At the same time, Chinese students in Beijing rallied for what they believed, and as a result were massacred by a government controlled by their parents; their cause was fueled by the desire for human rights that are considered to be, by Americans, "inalienable." Although serious, the confusing Mascara-scandal that surrounded Jim and Tammy Bakker and their PTL provided some comic relief. (Did we ever figure out if PTL stood for "Praise the Lord" or "Pass the Loot"?)

Of course, occasionally, we heard about something positive happening in the world. The United States and the Soviet Union made steps toward bridging the gap in relations. Summits between President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev suggested that there could perhaps someday be peace between the two nations. The Olympic Games of 1988 encouraged the belief in the good sportsmanship and friendly competition of governments, as well as individuals. In September, 1989, when President Bush announced a crackdown on the Colombian Drug Cartel, which resulted in the arrest of Columbia's Manuel Noriega, there was much hope for a "drug free world." In the world of science, our sights turned toward what would have once been considered purely science fiction when NASA's Voyager I sent us pictures of Neptune and continued its journey through our solar system. Toward the end of 1989, it seemed that with the crumbling of the Berlin Wall, which had separated Free and Communist Germany for almost thirty years, the Nineties could possibly be a time of positive social reform, peace and liberty.

So where does that put us now? We are part of the present and on the threshold between an old decade and a promising new future. With good resources and foresight, we shall become the solid foundation of our destiny. To ensure this, we must now "put our best foot forward" and stride into the new decade with hope and confidence. The 1990s are ours and whatever we want to make of them. Our generation must be the one that truly makes the difference, learns from the mistakes that have been made and provides a strong foothold for the coming years and the twenty-first century.

EVOLUTION

September 1986. Our first day of high school at Pope John. We were all nervous and a little scared, although none of us would admit it. Everyone tried to act calm and cool by talking to the students we went to school with in junior high. But when we walked through the blue doors of this huge brick building, the talking stopped and we came together for the first time, the Class of 1990.

Freshman year we found out where all the classes were, who the teachers were, what a "mod" was, and which side to sit on in the cafeteria. More importantly, though, we got to know each other pretty well and liked each other. Some of us took a trip to New York City, and later in the year we hit the slopes and went skiing. Our semi-formal during freshman year was also a special event for us because it was our first night partying together as the Class of 1990.

Sophomore year we realized how well-liked and trusted we were when the administration gave us permission for a ski weekend on the New Hampshire slopes. Also during sophomore year, we had a social at Caruso's Diplomat in Saugus. And on Thanksgiving Eve of that year, the Pope John football team won its first league championship since 1976. As a result, the class of 1990 became full of Pope John spirit and proud of their school.

Junior year we began to realize that we should enjoy ourselves while we could because SAT's and the college search were not too far in our future. Junior year was certainly a busy one for us because getting good grades was extremely important, but we managed to have fun, too. The big event for us that year was the Junior Prom at the Sheraton Tara in Danvers. One thing is true, and that is that we are an extremely good-looking class, as we were all decked out in our tuxedos and gowns. We also knew how to ride in style, as many limousines were there. One even had a jacuzzi in it! As expected, we began to get excited because we knew that the next year was ours.

Senior year was finally upon us, and it was hard to believe our high school days were almost over. People had told us that the four years would fly by, and we didn't believe them, but it was true. All we had to do then was to enjoy our last year as much as we could. With many events going on for the class of 1990, only one event lingered in the back of everyone's mind and that was Graduation Day, May 29, 1990, possibly the last time the class of 1990 would all be together.

Glad to have finished their first year, Joey Meuse, Gina Aloisi, Lisa Berman, Suzanne Slaney, Linda Messina, Dawna Gonsalves, Denise Guarino, and Jimmy Petitto celebrate on a spring cruise.

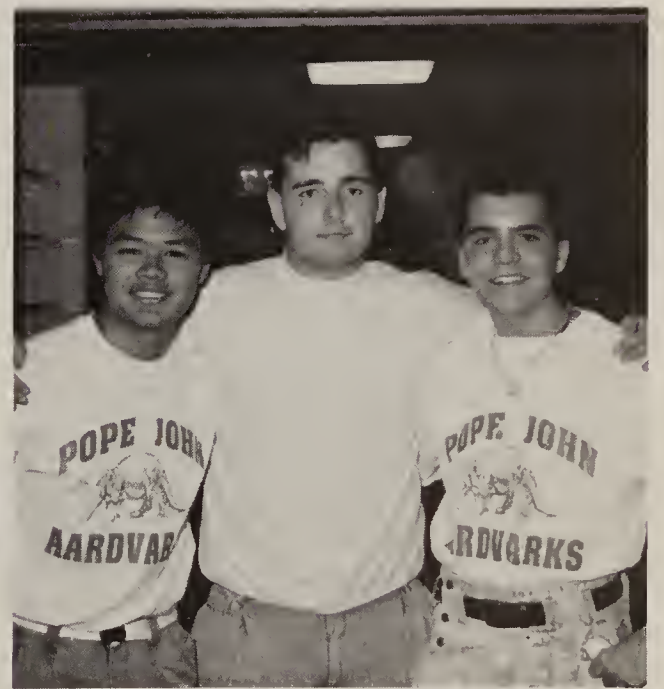

Marc Laterz and Jennifer Shinnars, members of the court at the Junior Prom, sharing a dance.

Boy do we change! Jennifer Sullivan and Lauri DiNapoli are living proof that high school is a time of evolution.

Reflecting on the passage of time, a younger-looking Chad Luongo can't believe sophomore year has come and gone.

Displaying aardvark pride brings smiles to the faces of Eric Liwanag and Paul Guiney, while Don DeLeire seems less enthusiastic.

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

For all of us senior year was a year of dilemmas and difficult choices. None of us could escape the decision we had to make - what would we do next year?

The college search has been known to cause chaos in the past, and this year was no different. For most of us, it all began in May of junior year when many of us were forced to face the reality of choosing a college, whether it be a two or four year school. Our SAT's were the first step toward a tiresome and nervewracking process which consumed our lives for the next year.

The summer was spent visiting college campuses and going on interviews. Then confusion was in the air. Where should I apply? Do I want a small or a large school? What should I major in? Is this the school for me? These are some of the many questions that we asked ourselves.

Then came fall and the application procedure. Besides taking a regular course load of homework, applications and deadlines were haunting us. Some had an added nightmare of retaking SAT's, as well as taking achievement tests.

College, however, was not for all of us. Many undecided seniors struggled with the idea of going to a two year school or maybe even joining the work force or armed forces. Many seniors have decent, steady jobs in which there is ample room to "climb the corporate ladder." For instance, some of our tellers could easily be in a managerial position within two years. Others decided the armed forces might be an alternative. But no matter which situation we were in, we were among the many confused seniors at Pope John.

For everyone, December was hectic. Papers were due, deadlines were getting nearer, and money had to be rounded up for application fees and postage. By January, exhaustion and frustration became a part of our lives. These feelings were not lifted until acceptances poured in from Bunker Hill to Harvard.

Then there was another burden, the FAF form. Just when we thought the rough part was over, we realized the "hassle" of applying for financial aid and the debt that faced us. Financial aid was both annoying and confusing. This was another factor in deciding where we would be next year and what careers we would pursue. But as the acceptances were reviewed and financial aid was considered, decisions were made. Do I go to college, do I work, or do I join the army? Which college do I go to? Once these decisions were made, life became easier.

Then it was time for finals. After finals we were allowed to breathe. Our stress was eliminated, for the time being, and we were able to enjoy the prom and graduation. Was it all worth it? Maybe in ten years we will all look back and say "definitely!"

The road to college starts in the classroom, and Jennifer Zampitella is off to a great start.

Who says learning can't be fun? Showing their smiles are Kristen Caton and Suzane Croteau.

Help comes in all shapes and sizes. Here is Madeline Igoe giving some advice to Carla Emmanuele.

Strong students always enjoy a good book - like Korin Natarelli taking advantage of study time.

GOING PLACES

As one can imagine, there are other places we Pope John students go besides school. From 8:00 - 2:00, we may be located at 888 Broadway, Everett, MA, but besides school, we are in many different kinds of places.

We can most often be found on the job. A majority of students have after-school jobs to earn a little extra money for themselves. We do all kinds of things. Some of us are tellers, some waitresses, and some even gas station attendants.

In our free time, we can very often be found at various hang-outs such as the mall, the Revere movie theater, or Kelly's Roast Beef. The beach is the most popular hang-out, however. On any given night one can ride along the shore and see at least four or five Pope John kids dancing on the wall or "goofing off" by their cars. However, if the night is brisk, those beach bums can be seen cruising around wreaking havoc on every surrounding city.

Of course, if the dance clubs are open, we are sure to be found there. Places like the Palace, Nite Shoes, and Faces are popular night spots for P.J. students. There we dance the night away to great music or just sit back and concentrate on meeting new people. No matter what we choose to do, it is sure to be an exciting night.

However, when Monday morning crawls around, there is one place where one can be sure to find us- back at good old P.J.

Without finding anything else to do, a rowdy group of Pope John youths decide to terrorize the peaceful city of Everett in the infamous "Soul Train."

Not letting a deadline hang over her head, Maria Gentile takes a peaceful walk around the mall.

These Pope John students aren't going anywhere, at least for the time being, for detention calls.

Paul Guiney and Paula Renzi dance a Friday night away at a school dance.

Although it's only thirty-five degrees outside, Kelly's Roast Beef remains a local hot spot for Pope John students.

FICTIONAL FUTURE FANTASIES

Is owning a luxurious mansion or, at this rate, even just a house, in your future? Or, how about an expensive car to cruise around in? Although we cannot predict our futures, we all have dreams and fantasies that we hope, pray, and, of course, know will come true. At this point, we are all looking to the future and working toward making our lives better. Each person has his or her own idea about what life should be, and how he or she can be successful, and, most importantly, happy. To some, a life of ease and extreme wealth is desirable, but to others, being married and raising a family will mean contentment. Still others are called to the high-pressure world of business in an attempt to climb that ladder. Whatever the case, the future is definitely in our minds as we end a major segment in our lives.

Change will certainly occur in our lives after we leave Pope John and abandon our familiar routines. Will this be for the better or for the worse? Not knowing our fates as we enter "the real world" is the most frightening part. We have become accustomed to the tiled walls, cold classrooms, and, yes, even the teachers. Whether we leave with joy and relief or with sadness and dread, the world awaits us. There is no turning back. We have high expectations and hope reality will not be a let-down. Then again, who knows? Maybe we will even end up back on that Pope John wall. Only time will tell . . .

Derek Melendy practices living the high life.

Susan Stella and Chad Luongo exemplify the fact that none of us knows the part that fate will play in our future lives, as they participate in a mock wedding ceremony with Fr. Raeke officiating.

Thinking that it would be nice to possess such a status symbol, Brenda McDonough wonders if she will ever own a Mercedes.

"Will this be such a familiar place after graduation?" ponders Joe Colarusso as he sits on the front wall.

Tracy Nemerowski smiles at the thought of perhaps someday living in a house as grand as this.

"Yes, we devoured all of this food!" Michelle Hegan, Debbie Grossi, Connie Gourgoumis, Erin Duffy, Jan Bonasoro, Denise Guarino, and Anne Irwin taking advantage of a brief lunch period.

Happy to be on a short break from class, Gia Ferullo and Jenny Ferrusi merrily descend toward the cafeteria.

This was used, and abused, by many seniors, including Stephanie Catallo.

Taking a break from daily routine, Flora Colarusso, Stacey Connor, and Lilla Contrada decide posing for the camera is more important than classwork.

The guys are at it again. Here is Stephen Fitzgerald trying to peek at Mike Dwyer's homework.

Fancy Footwork

This year Pope John soccer started its second year of rebuilding. Although it was a tough season, the players worked hard and enjoyed the season very much. Co-captains Joe Bitto and Scott Carpine both had excellent seasons along with the other senior starters Eric Liwanag, Jim Geddes, and Mike Penta. This troublesome season had one major highlight, the naming of Mike Penta to the Catholic Central All-Star team.

Hitting Our Stride

Imagine forfeiting the freedom of the final days of summer to go to school and run! Although this may be considered crazy, it's more a sign of dedication. The cross-country team, consisting of both girls and boys, trained faithfully even on the hottest days in August. This dedication led them to a winning season. Whether the meets were at Glendale Park or at unfamiliar places, the team managed to pull out ahead and improve their record. This boosted the team spirit, and the enthusiasm made the season enjoyable for all.

In addition, some members of the team experienced both the thrill and anxiety of competing in the league and state meets. Jennifer Davis was chosen as a League All-Star, the first in Pope John's history, and she proceeded to run in the championship meet. Congratulations to Jen and the rest of the team for making Pope John proud!

Rushing for Victory

Lack of depth hurt this year's Pope John football team more than any other opponent faced on the field. The final scores were not indicative of the Tigers' performance. Their record did not hinder their spirit. Victories during the 5th and 8th weeks of the season over Boston Tech and St. Clements, respectively, displayed their undying hunger for victory. Finishing up with a 2-7 season, Pope John Football managed to gain the respect of every opponent they faced this season.

Amazing Feats

The final record of the 1989 volleyball team did not tell the entire story. This year's team was young and inexperienced, led by only two seniors, Co-captains Jonelle Mellace and Kara McIntyre. This season had its ups and downs, but all of the hard work and determination paid off with two wins over state-finalist North Reading and the triumphant first-time victory over Notre Dame of Hingham during the last game of the year. Andrea Horne and Jonelle Mellace were named Catholic Central League All-Stars in a season that will not soon be forgotten.

LEADING THE WAY

The cheerleaders began their season by attending cheering camp at New England College. Next was the fall pep rally which was a big success. The cheerleaders all pitched in and decorated the halls for Spirit Day and did a great job. The fall team brought the football team spirit and support throughout the season. The season came to a close when the team placed third in the Catholic Central Fall Cheering Competition. The team was led by Jennifer Sullivan, Captain; Krystine Statho, Co-captain; and Colleen Stabile, Co-captain.

UP IN THE AIR

This year's girls' basketball team, coached by Sister Cathy Mozzicato, was a young squad with much dedication and team spirit. Although this team faced many strong and vigorous teams, they continued to strive and to do their best, which was one of the team's greatest attributes. The team was led by captain Donna O'Driscoll. The other seniors were Kristin Kinnally and Beth Gallagher. These Pope John athletes played especially well during the Christmas Tournament and earned a victory over Girls' Catholic.

Aiming High

The 1989-90 boys' basketball team strived for excellence throughout the season. They kept their winning attitude and continued to give it their best shot, regardless of the final score. The team was lead by tri-captains Robert Ventullo, Derek Melendy, and Donald King. It also had consistent play from seniors Chad Luongo, Richard Losanno, Jay Szymanski, Donald DeLeire, Matthew Miller, Reno DeFilippis, and Jimmy Allwood.

Putting the Puck in Motion

Due to their lack of experience, the hockey team was unable to have an outstanding season. There were many exceptional teams in their former league; therefore, they were forced to move into an independent league. The highlight of the season came when they beat Durfee, the second largest high school in New England, 1-0. The seniors on the team were: Daniel Hooley, John Kearney, Matthew Botta, Christopher Bush, and Paul Bridges.

Feb. 5 Girls League Meet

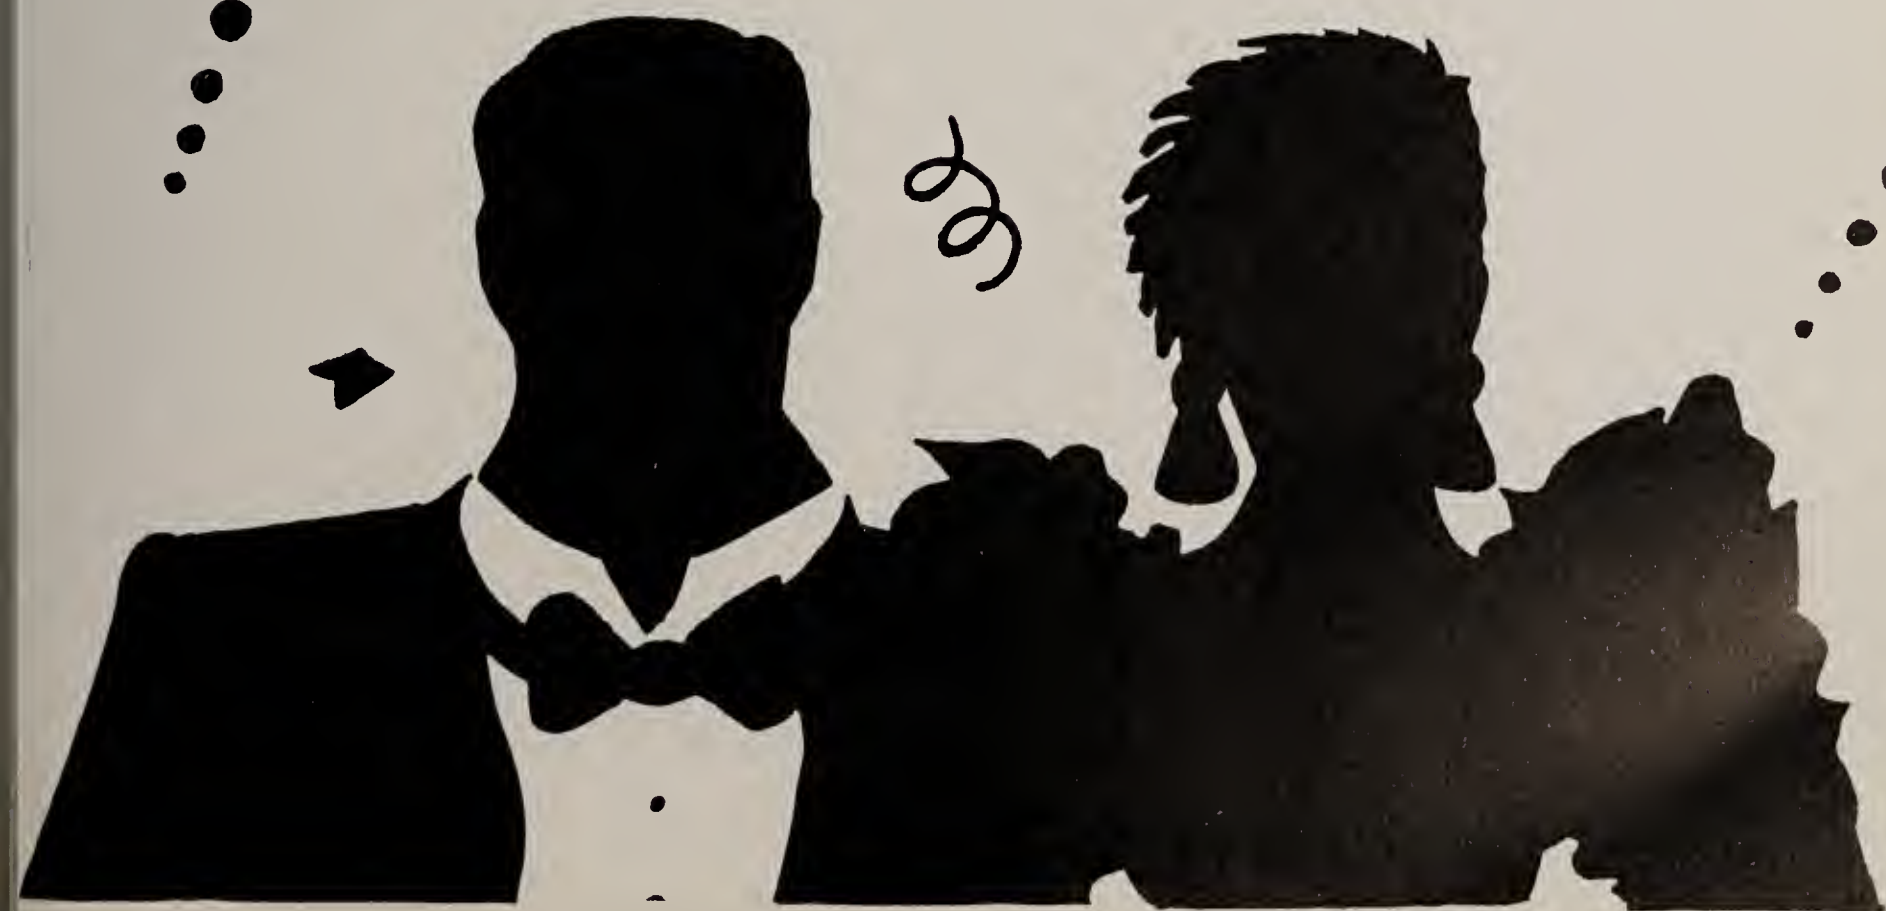

After making every effort to have a winter track team for the past few years, Coach Rabideau was finally able to get one started by getting Pope John into the Dual County League. Although most of the team were newcomers to track, they became accustomed to training, whether they were able to run outside or whether they had to confiscate all door stoppers in sight and run through the halls. Soon everyone got used to the long rides to Wayland High School, and each runner always tried to do her best in her event. However, the competition in the league was tremendous, and the team was not blessed with a winning season. Regardless, the team members enjoyed the season and were thankful that winter track had finally come to Pope John.

FRESHMAN SOCIAL

FIRST STEPS

As if being a freshman weren't bad enough, the class of 1990 had its first run in with semi-socializing on Friday, February 13, 1987, at Anthony's in Malden. Because we were so young and foolish, no one was quite sure of the exact definition of "semi-formal attire"; the most popular question which rang through the halls the days and weeks before was, "Well, I don't know, what are you wearing?" Those were the days before limos and licenses, and most of us were forced to rely on modes of transportation that are now frightening and unthinkable, for instance, Mom & Dad. Fortunately, that was only the first in a long line of such events, and over the years as our understanding of such functions increased, so did our fun.

"So, does anyone have a deck of cards?" asks John Kearney of Paul Guiney, Leo Pepper, Chris Costa, and gang.

Sitting pretty at the freshman social is Kristen Scott.

"I should have worn higher heels," thinks Kelly Costello as she dances with Jay Szymanski.

A match made in heaven: Susan Felice and Brian Wilburn.

SOPHOMORE SOCIAL

The second episode of the continuing saga of socializing occurred at Caruso's Diplomat in Saugus on April 8, 1988. Yes, as sophomores, we were just beginning to get the hang of soirée etiquette. "Who are you taking?" matched "What are you wearing?" as most popular question between classes. Dresses became a little more extravagant and the guys were more formal as well. Limos made their grand appearance in scores, and parents were nowhere to be seen chauffeuring the "jeune haut monde." The DJ played the latest "Top 40" hits, as well as some timeless classics, and we made ample use of the dance floor for most of the evening. The Sophomore Semi-formal was an enjoyable evening and a great opportunity to "roll out the red carpet" and mingle with one another in high style with no plaid in sight. It was well worth the time and energy spent in preparation for the memorable evening.

Corsages, whether pinned to the dress or worn around the wrist, as modeled by Denise Robillard and Lisa Berman, were among the necessary accessories.

This gang, Andrea Barratta, Kelly Costello, Kerry Cina, Liza Salamanca, and Danielle D'Amico were searching for their next camera victims until they themselves were caught.

No chance for girl talk here among Debbie Grossi, Erin Duffy and Anne Irwin as Rob Memmolo (Ham) decides to join the gathering.

Of course there were teachers chaperoning the event (and secretly having a good time as well), as shown by Mr. Shadbegian, Mr. DeBona and Mr. Cucchiara. By the way, the blue ribbons were given for good behavior . . . where's yours, Mr. D?

A view of the dance floor as it appeared most of the night.

Although their dresses may have clashed, these friends, Maria Gentile and Linda Messina certainly didn't with their matching smiles.

Couples were not too hard to find whether they were enjoying a slow dance or just being together on the sidelines, like Dina Bosco and her date.

STEPPING OUT

Who are you taking? Did you get a dress yet? What color is it? These were the questions that ran through our minds in the weeks prior to our Junior Prom. On the evening of May 3, 1989, however, all these problems were put aside and everyone let loose for a fantastic night at the Sheraton Tara in Danvers!

Limos came by the dozen, and from them stepped the Class of 1990 and their lucky dates, all clad in ensembles of the latest fashions. Some students could not even be recognized as the people we knew on a normal day at school.

First everyone got in line for pictures which we hoped and prayed would come out well. Then we were welcomed in by the faculty and sat down to a delicious meal. Soon after, the fun really began. The music started playing, and everybody got up to "boogie" the night away. Billy Costa was there and he gave everyone KISS 108 hats that were either worn or just thrown around the dance floor.

The night was topped off by the picking of the court and King and Queen of the Prom. Our king was Matt Botta, and his lovely Queen was Beth Svetly.

At the end of the night, all were sad to leave but happy that we would always have the memories of a great junior prom.

Among those enjoying a memorable occasion were Jan Bonasoro, Michelle Hegan, Debbie Grossi and their dates.

The Queen and King of the evening were Beth Svetly and Matt Botta.

Catching the spirit of enthusiasm are Yvette Story, Michele O'Brien, Kerrie Harrington, Colleen McLeod, and Carol Castillo.

Making an appearance at the event are class officers Kathleen McDonald (Treasurer), Gretchen Urquhart (Vice-President), Brian Carter (President), and Deanna Schiappa (Secretary).

orin Ntarelli and her date share one of the low dances during the evening.

HALLOWEEN DAY

Halloween just wouldn't be the same without the seniors' annual dress-up day for the whole school. This year's event was a great success with many students coming in with imaginative and creative costumes, although the seniors were, of course, the most original and spirited.

Pope John's own motley crew: Michele Wilhusen, Stacey Taylor, Tonya Vitiello, Gretchen Urquhart, and Joanne Testa.

Michelle McGrath, Kellie Hannigan, and Jeanine Marston get into the act on Halloween.

Pacifying the beast (Denise Robillard incognito) are Brandie Robertson, Deanna Schiappa, and Kristen Scott.

Father Rob and Sister Rita? Look what happens after four years of religion!

This lobster, Denise Guarino, swam all the way from Maine to be a part of our Halloween celebration.

Always willing to escape from the plaid, Kelly Costello and Lisa Pastore take advantage of a day to masquerade.

Waiting for her ship to come in, Connie Bonavita patrols the halls.

POWDER PUFF GAME

On November 22, 1989, the seniors lost their first Powder Puff game in its sixteen-year history. Many blamed the referees, and others believed the seniors were hampered by having to play one-hand tag instead of the traditional flag football. In any event, those who played, played well, and those who didn't play regretted it. All in all, practices paid off for some, and the senior coaches did their best and gave up their time to help the powder puff seniors. Therefore, the annual event was not a complete disaster and at least made us all realize that everything is not guaranteed, even football.

Carol Castillo shows her team spirit by holding the sign that says it all.

As shown by Rita DiPietrantonio and Rich Losanno, the Powder Puff match brought all types together to cheer on their team.

Seniors in action as the game begins with the kickoff.

"Coach" John Kearney goes over some last minute plays with Nicole DelloRusso, Ellen Lynch, and Beth Gallagher.

"Coach" John Sonia and his group form a huddle to discuss the plan of attack.

Die-hard fans like Lisa Pinto and Beth Svetly endured the freezing temperatures to support their team's efforts.

Suzane Croteau and Dina Bosco cheer on the seniors by proudly displaying their posters.

SNOWBALL

Dressing Up for a Night of Stepping Out . . . The Snowball

Despite the lack of snow, the cold night in Nahant was perfect for the Senior Snowball. On December 7, 1989, we found our way to the Oceanview Country Club for our own "night to remember." Ascending the stairs, we were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Pavone, Mr. and Mrs. MacNeil, Mr. Stanton, Sister Kristin, and, of course, Sister Nancy with her video camera. Eventually we all found our seats and were treated to a delicious meal. Before the plates were even cleared, the dance floor filled up and kept moving the entire night. Whether it was the latest dance song, a past dance craze, or an "oldie but goodie" tune, we showed off our dancing talents. Ending the night were a few slow songs, a chance to catch our breath before heading out into the chilly evening. But of course, let's not forget the best part of the night — no school the next day!!

Dressed in their finest, with no trace of polyester, Carol Castillo and Colleen Simmons make an appearance at the Snowball

Sharing a dance?! In the excitement of the evening, Sean Hogan and John Kearney get a little carried away.

In a different type of line-up, Christina Schepici, Colleen Stabile, Tanya MacDonald, Dineen Zirpolo, and Barbara Wythe are all guilty of having fun at the Snowball.

Just like at "home" (good ol' PJ of course), there is a "boys' table". Consisting of Chris Costa, Mike Crivello, Kenny Sarnie, Leo Pepper, Scott Lucey, and Dan Gullage.

The decorative Christmas tree provides the perfect background for Leyla Howard, Julie Doris, and Ellen Lynch, as well as adding a festive touch to the scene.

After dinner, Alison Hunter and Kara McIntyre relax a little before taking to the dance floor.

Adding to the enthusiasm on the dance floor are Kristen Scott, Brandie Robertson, Erin Duffy, Julie Kenney and her date.

Expressing confusion in calculus class are: (front) Linda Messina, Krystine Statho, Eric Liwanag, Donald DeLeire, Cari Conserva and Mary D'Alba; (back) Kathleen McDonald, Dawna Gonsalves. Leading the questions is Richard Losanno.

Not while I'm eating! In a candid cafeteria shot is Robert Pepple being given peace from Matt Miller.

Donna Belmonte breaks away from the books and sneaks a look at the camera during a study.

Displaying a variety of expressions found in the classroom are: (front) Paul Bridges and Scott Cina; (back) Charlie Miraglia, Courtney Lazzara, Joe Colarusso.

I want a picture with an aardvark! Showing their pearly whites are Michelle Clark, Andrea Carroll, Mr. Vesce, and Keri Cina.

The girls - oops, guys - participating in our annual Halloween costume day are James Allwood, Derek Melendy, Matt Botta, and Danny Hooley.

If we promise to smile will you take our picture? Kneeling: Lauri DiNapoli and Jennifer Sullivan. Standing: Debbie Grossi, Michelle Hegan, Anne Irwin, Connie Gourgoumis, Dawna Gonsalves, Gretchen Urquhart, Denise Guarino, and Barbara Santoro. Squeezing in on top are Brandie Robertson and Susan Felice.

Would you like some lunch? Elizabeth Pereira and Renee Conte share the wealth.

"Hi-ho, hi-ho, it's off to class we go," sing Joanne Wallace, Noreen Hagerty, Kelly O'Neil, Rachel Coleman, Leyla Howard, Colleen Simmons, and Susan Stella (Sleepy).

Dineen Zirpolo takes a meditative pause to reflect on life after studying.

Enchanted by food, Chad Luongo, Briane Barbarisi, Dina Bosco, Danny Hooley, Stephanie Tremonte, Krystine Statho, Jimmy Allwood, and Paula Renzi take over the snack machine, which is being used as an altar for the infamous bag.

Secretly boarding the forbidden elevator are Tara Picarello and Melissa Nicewicz, but they are caught in the act.

Trying to wake up and enjoy nutritious snacks before school are two members of "The Breakfast Club": Erin Duffy and Stacey Taylor.

Lunch, everyone's favorite part of the day, is spent catching up on locker room gossip.

Create a bonfire! Burn the math books! This is protest! But this is just an ordinary day in Sr. Cathy's Pre-calculus class. Joining the crowd are Stacey Connors, Chad Luongo, Robin Larsen, Colleen Stabile, Beth Svetly, Mina Buonopane, Dina Bosco, and Yvette Story. We were giving some input in that class. Right, Sr. Cathy?

Kerri Casarano and Andrea Carroll prove that it isn't impossible to enjoy a class at Pope John.

Trying to learn from others' mistakes in the computer lab are Denise Robillard, Joe Bitto, and Mrs. Hillmer.

IN MEMORIAM

Sister M. Theresilla O'Reilly, C.S.J.

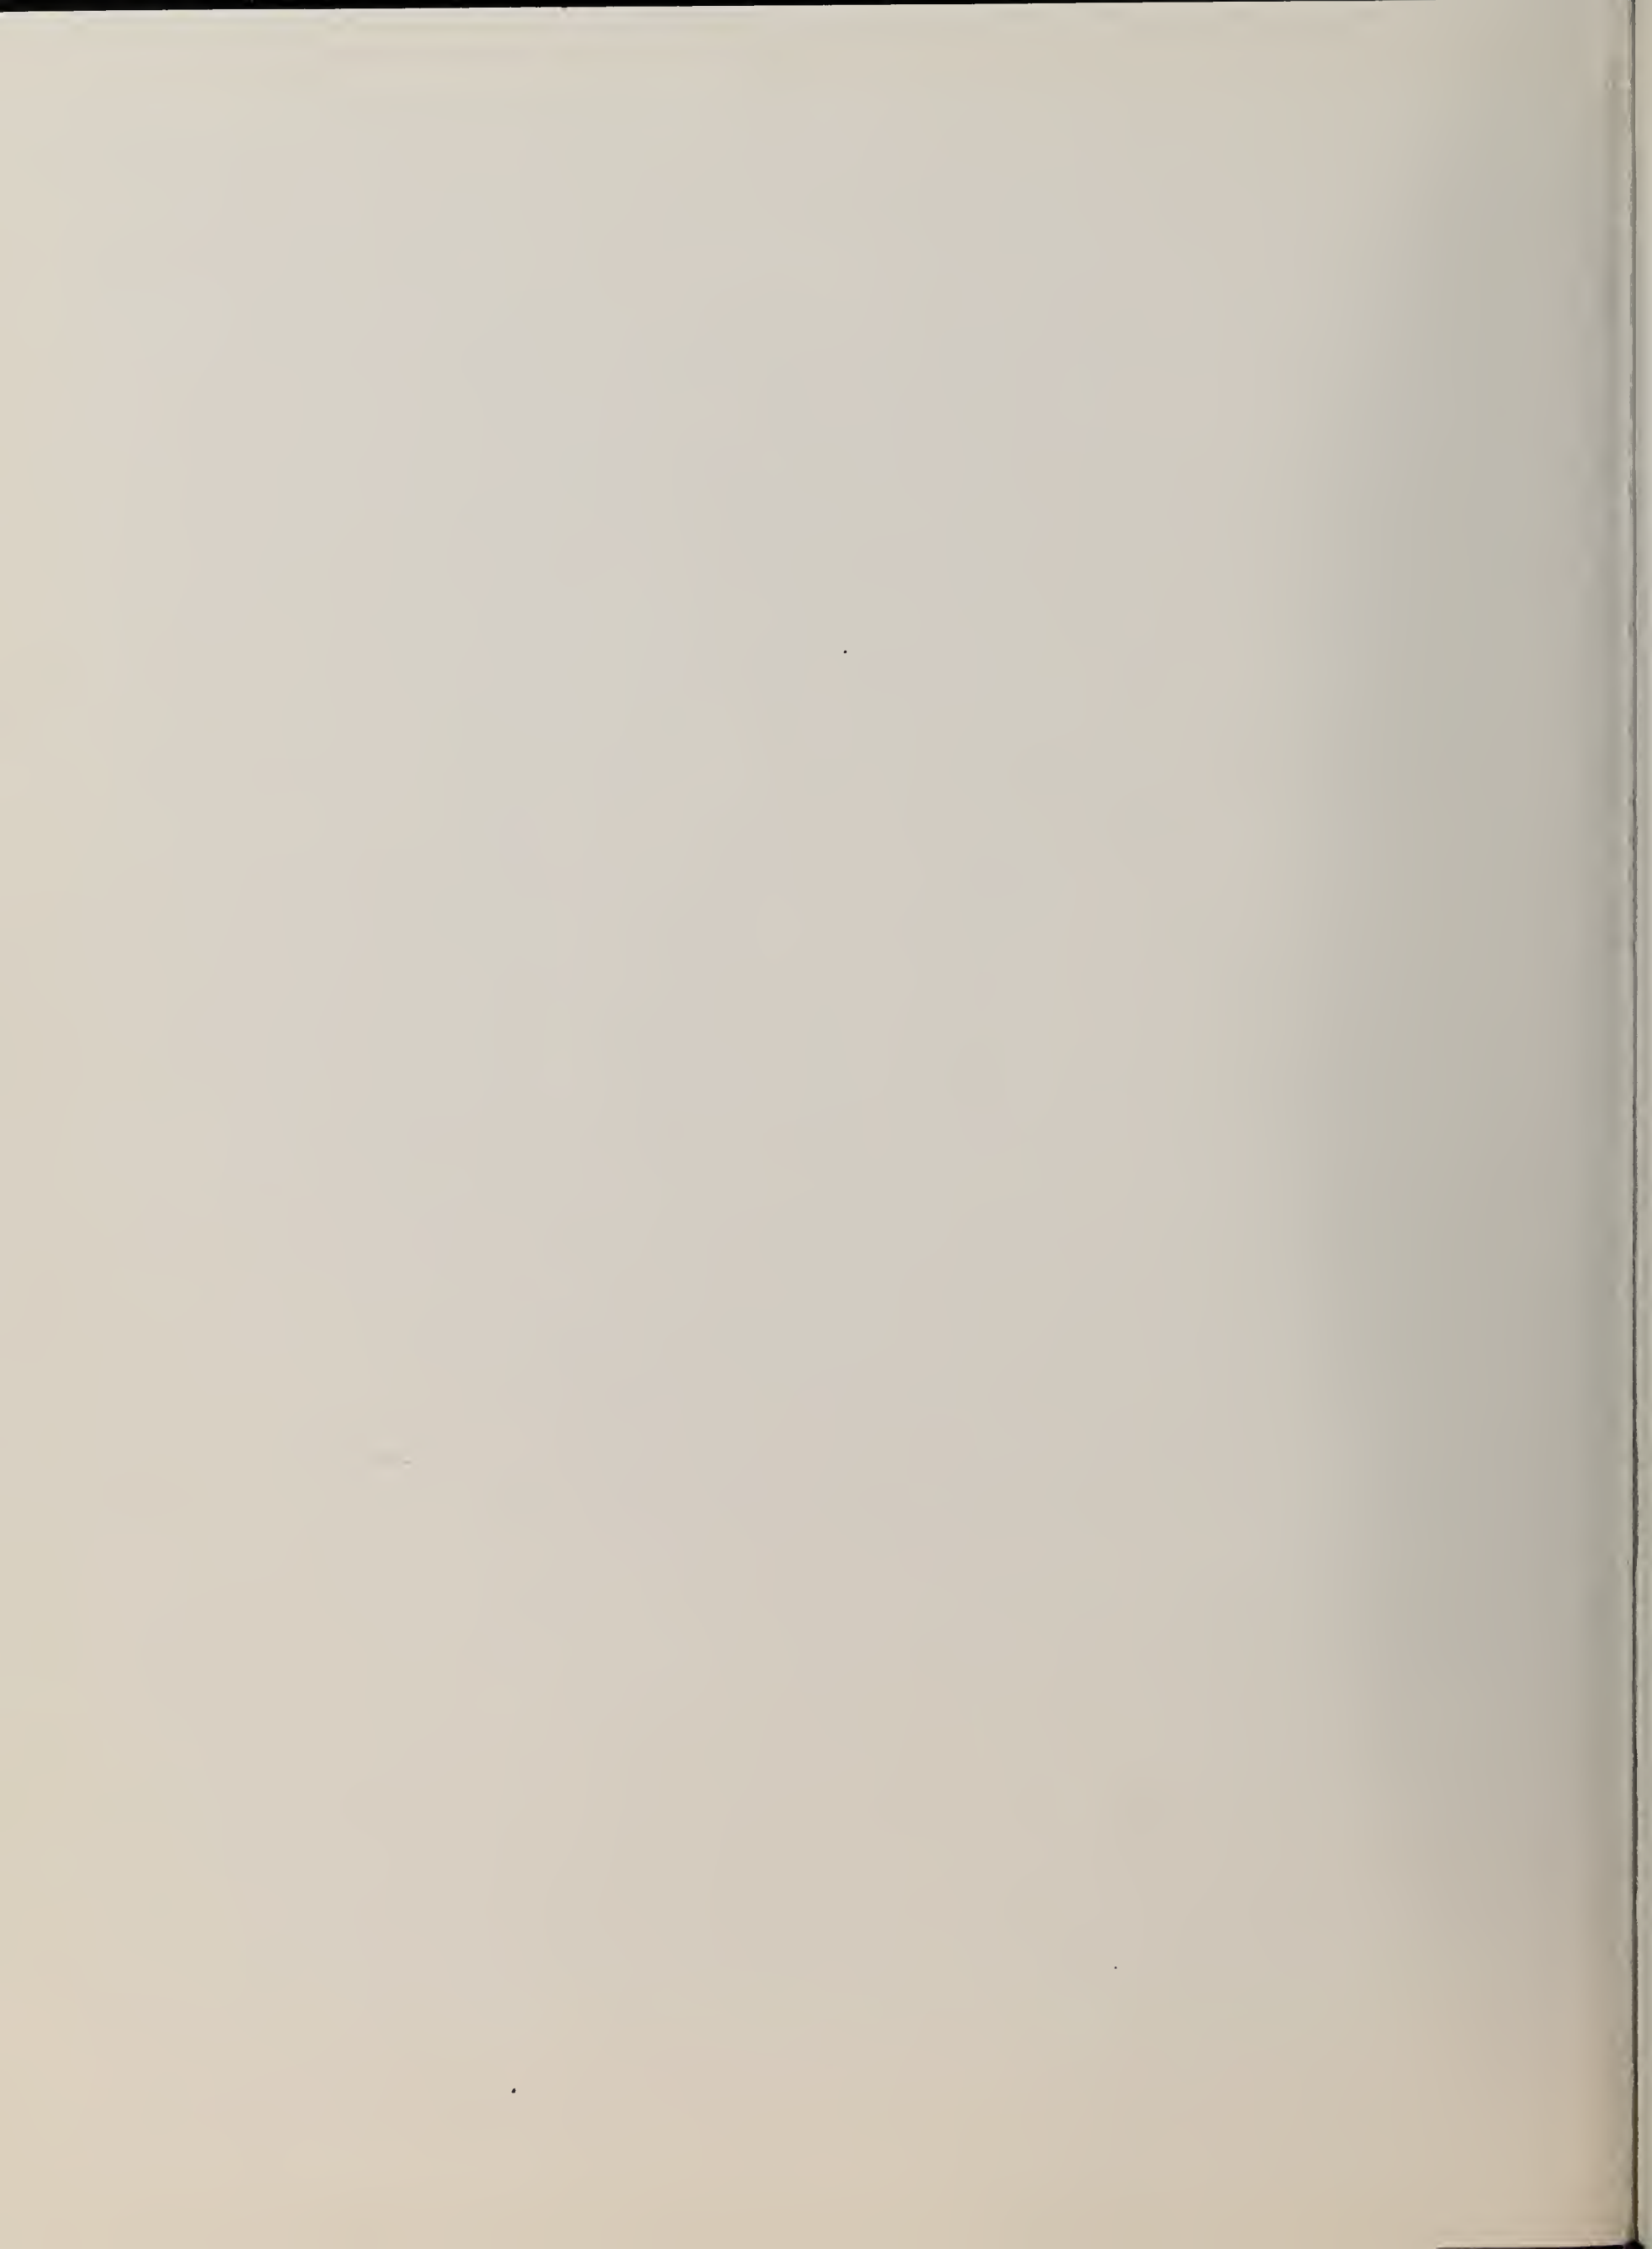

On July 28, 1989, the Pope John community was saddened by the unexpected death of Sister M. Theresilla O'Reilly, C.S.J. Most of us knew Sister Theresilla as the person in charge of tuition, but few of us knew her personally.

Sister Theresilla was a member of the Methodist religion until her high school days. Through the influence of her teachers and classmates at Mount St. Joseph Academy, she became a Catholic. To further her commitment to God, Sister Theresilla joined the Sisters of St. Joseph, and she later taught French and math.

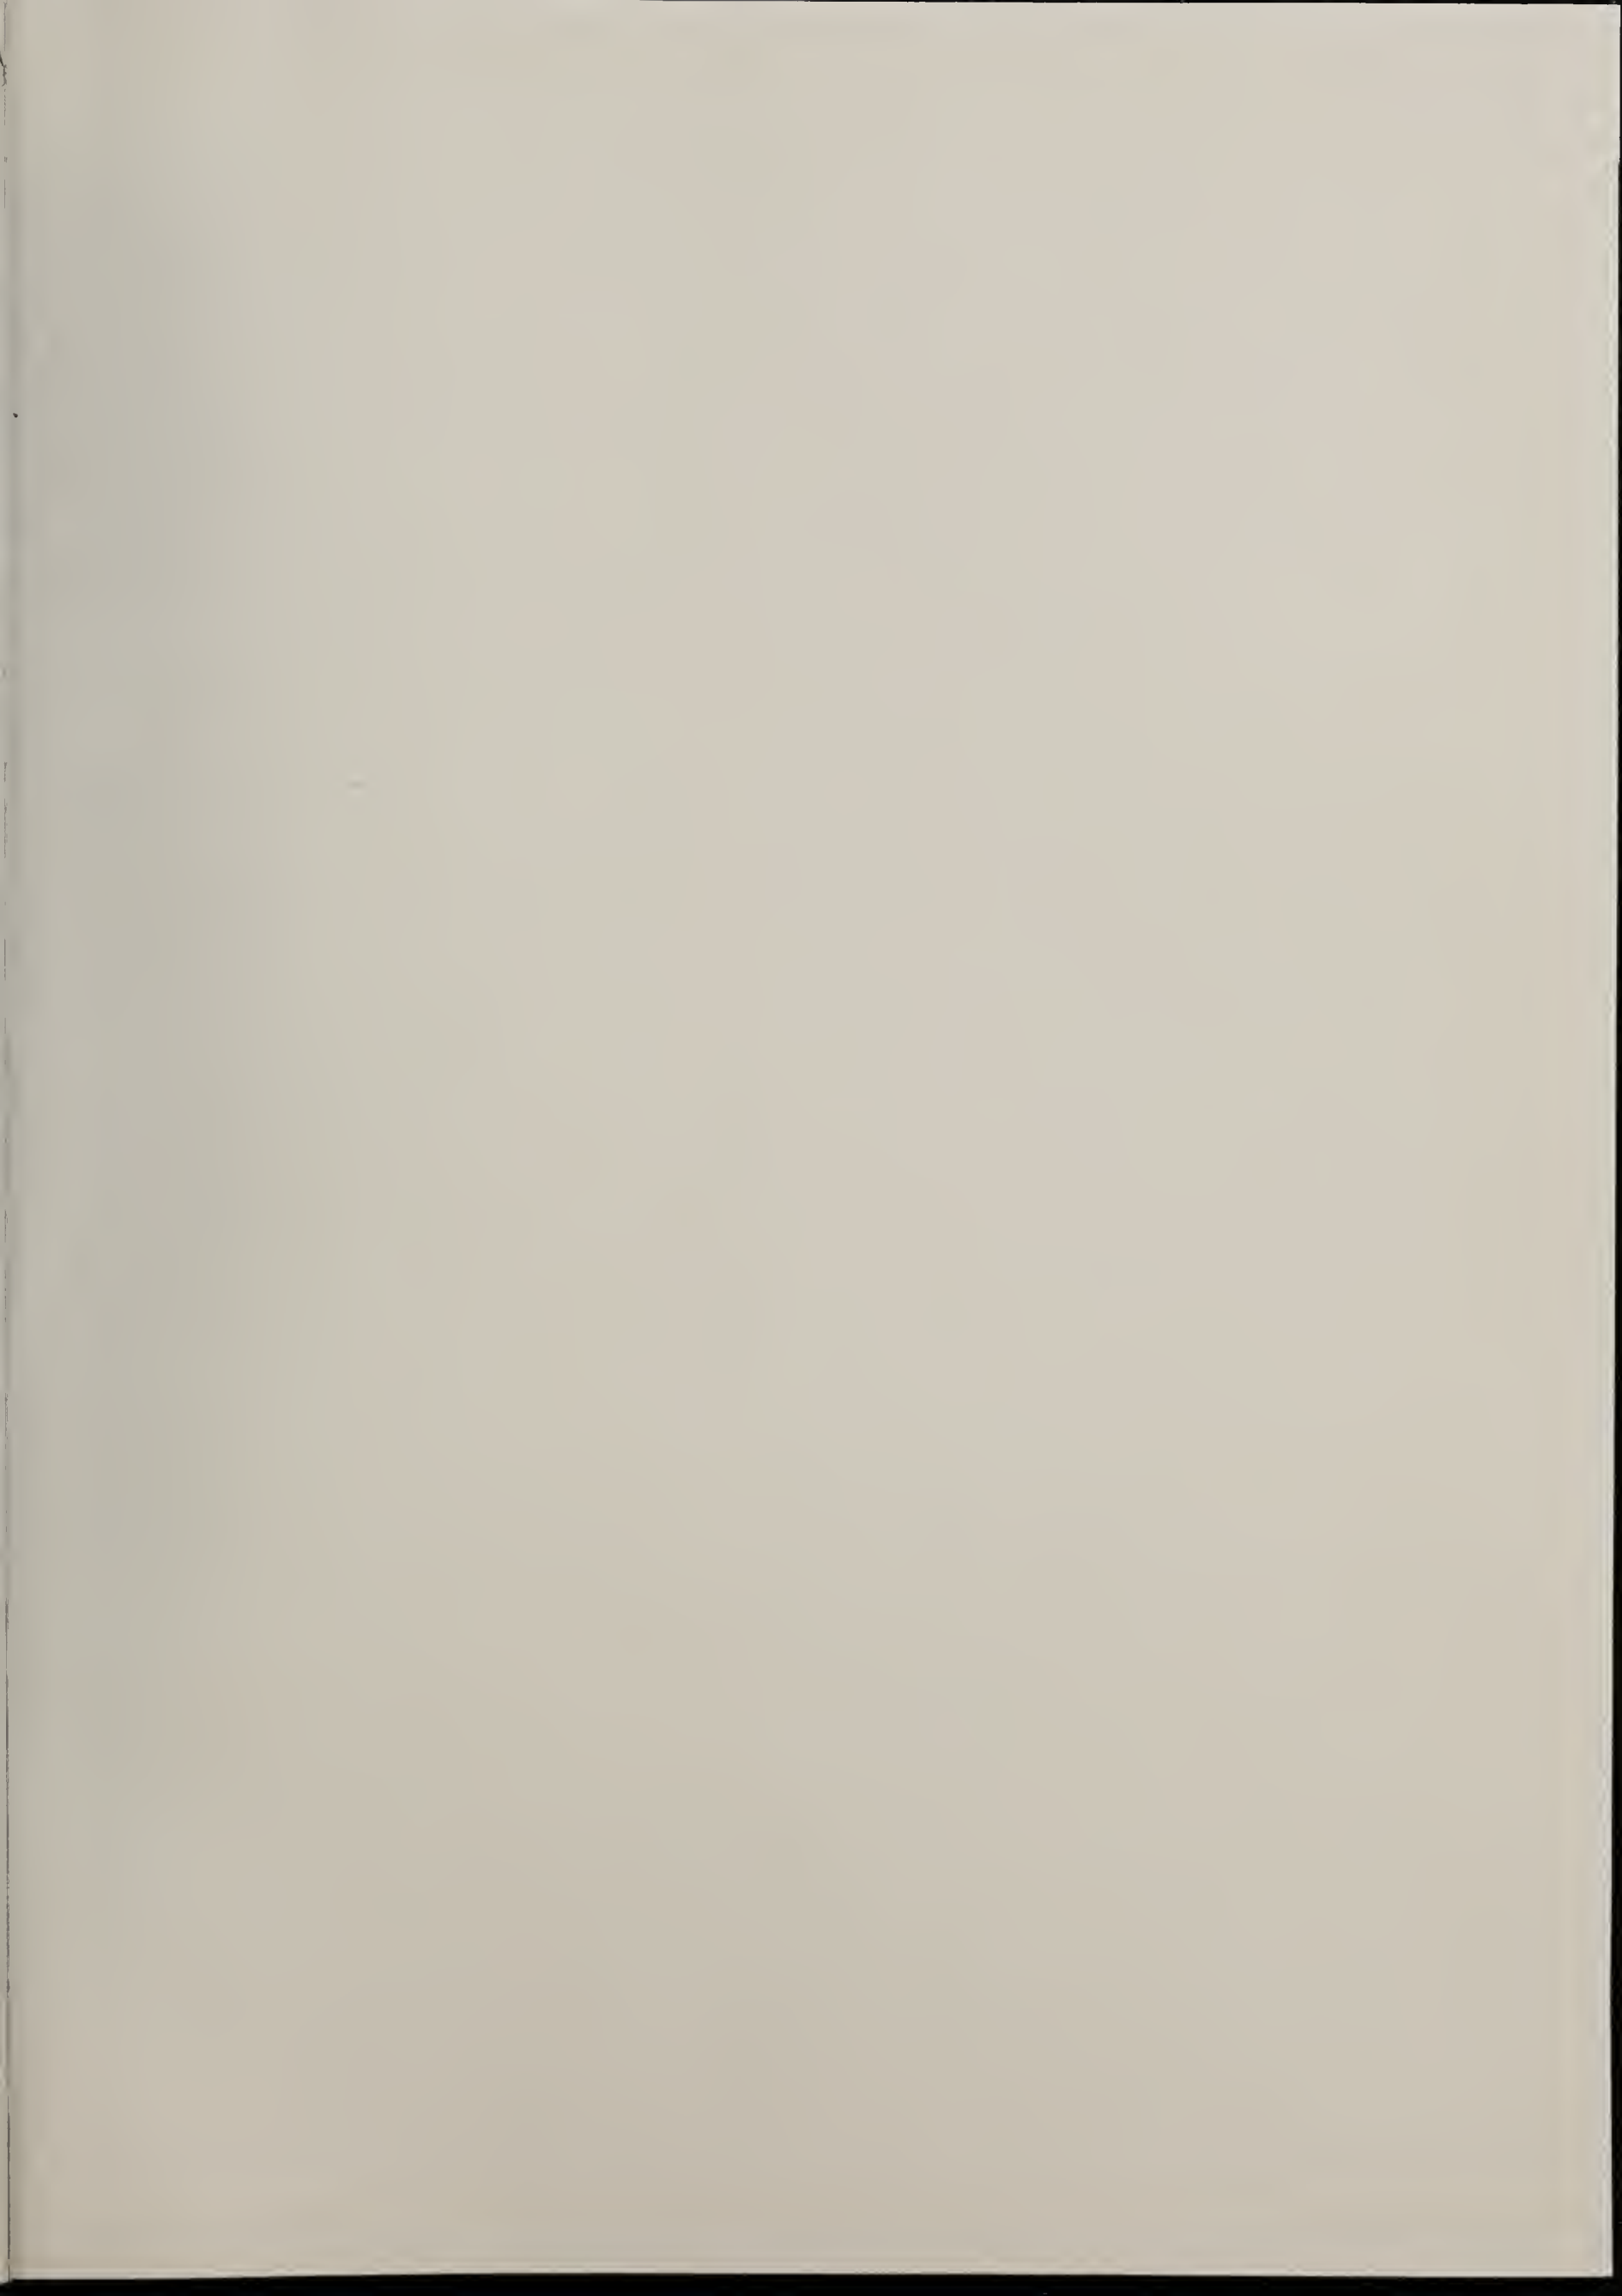

In addition to her work in education, Sister Theresilla had many other interests. She was a talented woman who enjoyed singing and painting. In addition, her hands were usually busy with many crafts. To thank God for her many gifts, she shared the products of her handiwork with many charitable organizations.

Sister Theresilla was a very compassionate person. We shall miss her prayerful presence.
